

NOTES ON CONTRIBUTORS

Joshua J. Bowman is an Assistant Professor of Political Science at Heidelberg University in Tiffin, OH and author of Imagination and Environmental Political Thought: The Aftermath of Thoreau (Lexington Books, 2018).

Kevin M. Cherry is Associate Professor in the Department of Political Science at the University of Richmond (Richmond, VA), where he teaches classes in the history of political thought and politics and literature. His articles have appeared in History of Political Thought, Review of Politics, and Political Theory, and his book Plato, Aristotle and the Purpose of Politics was published by Cambridge University Press (2012). He is currently at work on a book about how various political theorists have understood and sought to ameliorate the dangers of faction.

Brent Edwin Cushner is Associate Professor in the Department of Leadership and American Studies at Christopher Newport University, as well as a member of CNU's Honors Faculty. He holds a B.A. from Carleton College and a Ph.D. from the University of Toronto. Dr. Cushner has also held appointments at Carleton College, Rhodes College, and the University of Alaska at Anchorage. His research concerns models of political leadership in ancient political philosophy.

Bruce P. Frohnen is Professor of Law at Ohio Northern University's Pettit College of Law. His most recent book, with Ted V. McAllister, is Coming Home: Reclaiming America's Conservative Soul (Encounter Books, 2019).

Zachary K. German is Assistant Professor in the School of Civic and Economic Thought and Leadership at Arizona State University. He received his M.A. and Ph.D. in Political Science from the University of Notre Dame, specializing in Constitutional Studies and Political Theory. His research interests include American political and constitutional thought, statesmanship, and the relationship between institutional design, culture, and a people's character. His current book project examines statesmanship and constitutionalism in the thought of Montesquieu, the Federalists, and the Anti-Federalists.

Christie L. Maloyed is Associate Professor of Political Science at the University of Louisiana at Lafayette. She earned her Ph.D. in Political Science from Texas A&M University. Her research focuses on American political thought, religion and politics, civic education, and film, TV, and literature.

Matthew D. Mendham has taught at Hillsdale College, Christopher Newport University, Emory University, and the University of Notre Dame. His articles and book chapters have appeared in venues such as the American Journal of Political Science, History of Political Thought, History of European Ideas, Journal of Religion, and The Rousseauian Mind. The present article emerged from a book project which is forthcoming with the University of Pennsylvania Press: Hypocrisy and the Philosophical Intentions of Rousseau: The Jean-Jacques Problem.

Michael Promisel is Assistant Professor of Politics at Coastal Carolina University where he teaches political philosophy and American politics. He specializes in classical political thought and writes on topics concerning leadership, virtue, and religion and politics.

Timothy Shiell is Professor of Philosophy and founder and Director of the Menard Center for the Study of Institutions and Innovation as well as the founder and past Director of the Center for Applied Ethics at University of Wisconsin-Stout. His leading publications include Campus Hate Speech on Trial (1998 and 2009) and African Americans and the First Amendment (2019). He also edited Civil Liberties in Real Life: Seven Studies (2020). In addition to his scholarship and teaching, Shiell is active defending free speech and academic freedom.

Howard Schweber is Professor of Political Science and an Affiliate Faculty member of the law school and Legal Studies at the University of Wisconsin-Madison. He received his B.A. from the University of Pennsylvania, a J.D. from the University of Washington, an M.A. in American History from the University of Chicago and a Ph.D. in Government from Cornell University. He is the author of four books and co-editor of two others, as well as the author of numerous articles on subjects of constitutional law, history, and theory. Prof. Schweber is the editor of Constitutional Studies and makes frequent media and public appearances.

Luke C. Sheahan is Assistant Professor in the Department of Political Science at Duquesne University and a Non-Resident Scholar in the Program for Research on Religion and Urban Civil Society (PRRUCS) at the University of Pennsylvania. He researches the intersection of First Amendment rights and political theory.

Trevor Shelley is Postdoctoral Associate at The School of Civic and Economic Thought and Leadership at Arizona State University. He is the author of Globalization and Liberalism: Montesquieu, Tocqueville, and Manent (Notre Dame University Press, 2020).

Matthew Van Hook is Associate Professor and Chief of the American and Policy Studies Division of the Department of Political Science at the United States Air Force Academy (Colorado Springs, CO).