

NOTES ON CONTRIBUTORS

Jeremy D. Bailey is a Professor in the Department of Classic and Letters at the University of Oklahoma, where he holds the Sanders Chair in Law and Liberty and is the Director of the Institute for the American Constitutional Heritage. His research interests include the political thought of the early republic as well as constitutional controversies concerning executive power.

Sandrine Baume is a Professor of Political Theory and the History of Political Thought at the Centre for Public Law at the University of Lausanne. Her research revolves around the theory of the democratic state, with focus being placed on compromise, judicial review, militant democracy, political parties, and transparency. She has published extensively on Weimar political thought. Her writings have notably appeared in the journals of Constellations, Critical Review of International Social and Political Philosophy, History of European Ideas, and Intellectual History Review. She is currently co-editing (with David Ragazzoni) the following book: Hans Kelsen on Constitutional Democracy: Genesis, Theory, Legacies, Cambridge University Press (forthcoming).

John Boersma is a Postdoctoral Fellow in the Center for the Study of Liberal Democracy at the University of Wisconsin-Madison. He received his PhD from Louisiana State University (2019), writing his dissertation on friendship in ancient political thought. In addition, he received his JD from St. John's University School of Law (2015). His research interests are primarily in ancient political philosophy and constitutional law.

Nicholas Buccola is the Elizabeth and Morris Glicksman Chair in Political Science at Linfield University. He is the author of The Fire is upon Us: James Baldwin, William F. Buckley Jr., and the Debate over Race in America (2019) and The Political Thought of Frederick Douglass: In Pursuit of American Liberty (2012). He is the editor of The Essential Douglass: Writings and Speeches (2016) and Abraham Lincoln and Liberal Democracy (2016).

Philip D. Bunn is a Ph.D. candidate in Political Science at the University of Wisconsin-Madison. His research brings both ancient and modern political thought to bear on contemporary issues, with a focus on normative questions relating to technology.

Wendell John Coats Jr. is Professor of Government at Connecticut College in New London, CT, where he teaches ancient, medieval and modern political theory. His most recent book is Michael Oakeshott as a Philosopher of the "Creative" (2019).

Carol B. Cooper is an Instructional Assistant Professor at the University of Houston, where she teaches in the Honors College and the Political Science Department. She received her doctorate in politics from the Catholic University of America in 2016.

Yiftah Elazar is a Lecturer (Assistant Professor) in the Department of Political Science at the Hebrew University of Jerusalem. His research is in political theory and the history of political thought, with particular interests in the Enlightenment period and in republicanism.

Michael P. Federici is Professor and Chair of the Political Science and International Relations Department at Middle Tennessee State University. He received his B.S. in economics from Elizabethtown College and his M.A. and Ph.D. in politics from The Catholic University of America. He is the author of three books and three edited volumes: The Political Philosophy of Alexander Hamilton, The Challenge of Populism, Eric Voegelin: The Search for Order, The Culture of Immodesty in American Life and Politics: The Modest Republic, Rethinking the Teaching of American History, and The Catholic Writings of Orestes Brownson.

J. David Franks is a Senior Research Fellow at the Abigail Adams Institute, convening its flagship program, The Great Conversation. He received his Ph. D. in systematic theology from Boston College, and was professor of sacred theology for almost a decade at St. John's Seminary, where he co-founded the Theological Institute for the New Evangelization and its Catechetical Certificate program. An activist as well as an intellectual, David serves as Chairman of the Board for Massachusetts Citizens for Life, founding and directing its Lincoln Forum for Human Dignity, which advances a liberal-arts and high-culture approach to reigniting civic conversation.

Richard M. Gamble holds the Anna Margaret Ross Alexander Chair in History and Politics at Hillsdale College. His publications include The War for Righteousness (ISI Books, 2003), In Search of the City on a Hill (Continuum, 2012), and most recently A Fiery Gospel (Cornell, 2019). In 2007, he published an anthology on liberal arts education, also with ISI Books: The Great Tradition: Classic Readings on What It Means to be an Educated Human Being. He writes frequently for Law & Liberty, and his essays and reviews have appeared in Modern Age, Humanitas, Ecclesiastical History, Kansas History, and many other journals.

Grant Havers is Chair of the Department of Philosophy (with a cross-appointment in the Department of Political Studies) at Trinity Western University. He has published and lectured widely on political philosophy and the history of philosophy. Havers is the author of Lincoln and the Politics of Christian Love (University of Missouri Press, 2009) and Leo Strauss and Anglo-American Democracy: A Conservative Critique (Northern Illinois University Press, 2013).

John von Heyking is Professor of Political Science at the University of Lethbridge (Canada), where he teaches political philosophy. He is author of Comprehensive Judgment and Absolute Selflessness: Winston Churchill on Politics as Friendship (2018), The Form of Politics: Aristotle and Plato on Friendship (2016), and Augustine and Politics as Longing in the World (2001). He has coedited numerous volumes including two volumes of the Collected Works of Eric Voegelin and, most recently, Wherefrom Does History Emerge? Inquiries in Political Cosmogony (with Tilo Schabert).

Sanford V. Levinson is the W. St. John Garwood and W. St. John Garwood Jr. Centennial Chair in Law, University of Texas Law School, and Professor of Government, University of Texas at Austin. The author of a number of books on the United States Constitution and American political thought, he was elected to the American Academy of Arts and Sciences in 2001 and received the Lifetime Achievement Award of the Law and Courts Section of the American Political Science Association in 2010.

Daniel J. Mahoney is Professor Emeritus of Political Science at Assumption University, Senior Fellow at the Claremont Institute, and Senior Writer at Law and Liberty. His many books include The Idol Of Our Age: How the Religion of Humanity Subverts Christianity (Encounter Books, 2018) and The Statesman as Thinker: Portraits of Greatness, Courage, and Moderation, published in May 2022 by Encounter Books in 2022.

Gerald M. Mara is Affiliate Professor of Government and Dean Emeritus of the Graduate School, Georgetown University. He is the author of Between Specters of War and Visions of Peace: Dialogic Political Theory and The Challenges of Politics, (2019), The Civic Conversations of Thucydides and Plato: Classical Political Philosophy and the Limits of Democracy (2008) and Socrates' Discursive Democracy: Logos and Ergon in Platonic Political Philosophy (1997) and joint editor of Liberalism and the Good (1990). His journal articles include "Possessions Forever: Thucydides and Kant on Peace, War and Politics," Polity, 45, 2013 (winner, Polity Prize).

Wilfred M. McClay is Professor of History at Hillsdale College. His book The Masterless: Self and Society in Modern America received the 1995 Merle Curti Award of the Organization of American Historians for the best book in American intellectual history. Among his other books are The Student's Guide to U.S. History, Religion Returns to the Public Square: Faith and Policy in America, Figures in the Carpet: Finding the Human Person in the American Past, Why Place Matters: Geography, Identity, and Public Life in Modern America, and Land of Hope: An Invitation to the Great American Story.

Kenneth B. McIntyre is Professor of Political Science at Sam Houston State University. He is the author of The Limits of Political Theory: Michael Oakeshott on Civil Association (2004), Herbert Butterfield: History, Providence, and Skeptical Politics (2012), and Nomocratic Pluralism: Plural Values, Negative Liberty, and the Rule of Law (2021), and co-editor of Critics of Enlightenment Rationalism (2021).

Charles R. Pinches is Professor of Theology at the University of Scranton in Scranton, PA. He is the author of Theology and Action (2002), Christians Among the Virtues (1997) with Stanley Hauerwas, and Living Vocationally (2020) with Paul Wadell, as well as a number of articles in professional journals such as Political Theology and The Journal of Religious Ethics.

Linus Recht is a graduate student in Political Science at the University of Notre Dame. His work has appeared in The Psychoanalytic Review (2017), International Journal of Asian Studies (2020), Critical Historical Studies (2020), Telos (2021), Science & Society (2021), Perspectives on Political Science (2021), Tokyo Metropolitan University Journal of Law and Politics (2021), and History of Political Thought (forthcoming).

Scott Philip Segrest is an Associate Professor of Political Science at The Citadel, where he teaches political theory, political ideologies, religion and politics, and American politics. He has published several articles on jihadist ideology and is currently writing a book on “The Jihadist’s Will to Power.” He has also published a book on American political thought entitled America and the Political Philosophy of Common Sense.

Luke C. Sheahan is an Assistant Professor in the Department of Political Science at Duquesne University and a Non-Resident Scholar in the Program for Research on Religion and Urban Civil Society (PRRUCS) at the University of Pennsylvania. He researches the intersection of First Amendment rights and political theory and he is the author of Why Associations Matter: The Case for First Amendment Pluralism.

Steven B. Smith is the Alfred Cowles Professor of Political Science at Yale. He is the author of Modernity and its Discontents, Reading Leo Strauss, Hegel’s Critique of Liberalism, and Spinoza’s Book of Life among many other works. His introduction to political philosophy which is available on Yale Open Courses has been viewed by people all over the world. He is the recipient of the Les Hixon ’63 Prize for excellence in teaching in the social sciences and the Ralph Waldo Emerson Prize presented by Phi Beta Kappa. He is a devoted New York Yankees fan.

Lee Trepanier is a Professor of Political Science at Samford University in Birmingham, Alabama. He also is the editor of Lexington Books series Politics, Literature, and Film.

Steven Waldorf is the Donnelley Postdoctoral Research Fellow in the Departments of History and Political Science at the University of Chicago. Dr. Waldorf's interests include the history of medieval and early modern political thought, the Scholastic reception of Aristotle, and political theology. He holds a PhD and MPhil in Political Thought and Intellectual History from the University of Cambridge, and an AB in Government from Georgetown University.

Michael Walzer is a Professor Emeritus of Social Science in the Institute for Advanced Study in Princeton, NJ. His new book, forthcoming from Yale University Press, is The Struggle for a Decent Politics: On "Liberal" as an Adjective.