

NOTES ON CONTRIBUTORS

JEFFREY CHURCH is Chair and Professor of Political Science at the University of Houston. He is the author of several books and articles on German political thought from Kant through Nietzsche as well as on liberal theory and practice.

STEPHEN CLOUSE is an Assistant Professor of Political Science and McMaster Professor of Constitutional Studies at Defiance College. His primary focus is on Aristotle and the role of storytelling in the life of the city.

BRIAN DANOFF is Professor of Political Science at Miami University. He is the author of Why Moralize upon It? Democratic Education through American Literature and Film (Lexington, 2020) and Educating Democracy: Alexis de Tocqueville and Leadership in America (SUNY, 2010). He is also co-editor of Alexis de Tocqueville and the Art of Democratic Statesmanship (Lexington, 2011). His articles have appeared in journals such as The Review of Politics, American Political Thought, Perspectives on Political Science, and Presidential Studies Quarterly.

ELISABETH ELLIS is Professor of Philosophy and Director of the Philosophy, Politics, and Economics program at the University of Otago in Aotearoa New Zealand. Her current project, “the politics of planetary boundaries,” investigates how we can make environmental policy decisions that serve our interests in flourishing now and in the future. Ellis has also written about the political philosophy of Immanuel Kant, Hobbes’s Leviathan, and many other topics. Her work has been supported by the Australian Research Council, New Zealand’s National Science Challenges, the Institute for Advanced Study, the National Endowment for the Humanities, and the Deutscher Akademischer Austauschdienst.

THOMAS W. HOLMAN is a PhD Candidate in the Department of Politics at Catholic University of America.

MICHAEL KRYLUK is a Postdoctoral Researcher in the Kantian Foundations of Democracy project at the University of Oslo. He received his PhD in philosophy from Stony Brook University (2022). His research mainly focuses on Kant's moral and political philosophy.

AARON KUSHNER After growing up in New Castle, Pennsylvania, Aaron Kushner attended Saint Vincent College, graduating in 2013 with a major in politics, and earned his doctorate in political science at the University of Missouri in 2019.

LYNITA NEWSWANDER is a professor of English at Brigham Young University-Idaho where she teaches professional writing, rhetoric, and great books. Her research interests span a broad range including literature and politics, American political rhetoric, classical political philosophy, and religion and politics. Her interdisciplinary work has been published in Higher Education, The Review of Higher Education, The Journal of Higher Education, Administration & Society, and The American Review of Public Administration, among others. She is a co-author of LDS in the USA, published by Baylor University Press (2012).

LORRAINE PANGLE is Professor of Government and Co-director of the Thomas Jefferson Center for the Study of Core Texts and Ideas at the University of Texas at Austin. Her teaching and research focus on the history of political and moral philosophy, with special interests in Homer, Plato, Xenophon, Aristotle, and the American Founders.

BEN PETERSON is an assistant professor of political science at Abilene Christian University.

PHILLIP PINELL is a graduate student in the department of political science at the University of Wisconsin-Madison.

TED J. RICHARDS is a Visiting Assistant Professor at the Declaration of Independence Center for the Study of American Freedom at the University of Mississippi.

RAÚL RODRÍGUEZ is a Dean's Research Associate in Political Science at Michigan State University. He received his B.A. in Political Science and History from Furman University in 2013. He received his Ph.D. from the University of Notre Dame, with a concentration in political philosophy and constitutional studies. Dr. Rodríguez's writings have appeared in venues such as the American Journal of Political Science, the journal of American Political Thought, and The Review of Politics. He is currently writing a book on Alexis de Tocqueville, titled Redeeming Democracy: Tocqueville's New Liberalism.

DUSTIN SEBELL is associate professor in the Department of Political Science at Michigan State University.

MAX SMITH is the Earl S. Johnson Instructor in Political Science in the Masters of Arts Program in the Social Sciences and the College at the University of Chicago. He received his Ph.D. in Political Science from the University of Notre Dame and has a BA in Political Science from the University of Chicago. His research focuses on the history of political thought and contemporary democratic theory. Specifically, he is interested in theories of civil conflict. He is current book project uses Machiavelli's theory of class conflict and critique of party politics to reimagine contemporary agonistic democratic theory.

PETER J. STEINBERGER is Robert H. and Blanche Day Ellis Professor of Political Science and Humanities, Reed College.

NICHOLAS TAMPIO is Professor of Political Science at Fordham University. He is the author of Teaching Political Theory: A Pluralistic Approach (Edward Elgar Publishing, 2022) and the editor of a new edition of John Dewey's Democracy and Education (Columbia University Press, 2024).

ROBERT S. TAYLOR is Professor of Political Science at the University of California, Davis. He received his Ph.D. from the University of California, Berkeley, in 2002. He specializes in contemporary analytic political philosophy and the history of liberal political thought. He has written numerous articles on Kant, Mill, Rawls, autonomy, self-ownership, and commercial republicanism as well as two books: Reconstructing Rawls: The Kantian Foundations of Justice as Fairness (Penn State University Press, 2011) and Exit Left: Markets and Mobility in Republican Thought (Oxford University Press, 2017).

JACOB C.J. WOLF is an Assistant Professor of Government and the Associate Director of the Lincoln Program for the Study of American Ideals at Regent University in Virginia Beach, VA. Prior to this, he was the 2020-2021 John and Daria Barry Postdoctoral Fellow in the James Madison Program at Princeton University. He received his Ph.D. in Political Science from Boston College, and his research focuses on the intersection of religion and politics in the American context.